ATLANTIC GOLIATH TORPEDOED LAST NIGHT WITH HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE. CHURCHILL ANNOUNCES.

TURK GUNBOATS SUNK

English Submarine Which Penetrates to Sea of Marmara Reported to Have Sent Down Two Gunboats and a Transport.

London, May 13.—The British battleship Goliath has been torpedoed in the Dardanelles. It is feared that 500 men have been lost. Lord Churchill has made the statement that it is not known just how many persons were on board, but fears that 500 were drowned. He further announces that the British submarine E-14 has gone through the Dardanelles, and that it has sunk two Turkish gunboats and one Turkish transport.

Protected French Flank. Mr. Churchill, announcing the loss of the Goliath, said: "The Goliath was torpedoed last night in an attack by a destroyer, while protecting the French flank just inside the strait."

"Twenty officers and 160 men were saved which, I fear, means over 500 were lost."

"The admiral commanding at the Dardanelles also telegraphs that the submarine E-14 which with so much daring penetrated to the sea of Marmara, has reported she sank two Turkish gunboats and a large Turkish transport."

Gains on Peninsula. London was cheered today by a dispatch from Athens recording a decided advance of British and French troops along the Gallipoli Peninsula. Some reports even claimed the occupation of certain heights which would mean the entire peninsula was under the control of the invaders.

Fourth Ship Lost at Strait. The Goliath was one of the older British battleships of the pre-dreadnaught type. She was built in 1898. Her complement was 750 men. She was 400 feet long on the water line and 74 feet beam. Her displacement was 12,000 tons. She was armed with four 12-inch and twelve 6-inch guns; twelve 12-pounders, six 3-pounders and two machine guns and four torpedo tubes. She is the third British battleship which was lost at the Dardanelles.

The loss of the Irresistible and Oceanic together with the French battleship Bouver, was announced on March 19. All three ships struck mines during a general assault on the Dardanelles forts on March 19.

On April 6 a wireless dispatch from Berlin said information received there that British battleship Lord Nelson had been destroyed by the fire of the Turkish guns. This report was not confirmed by the British admiralty.

Fleet Shells Forts. Paris, May 13.—A Havas dispatch from Athens says: "An allied fleet re-entered the Dardanelles last night and bombarded the forts of the Turkish coast. The allied forces are causing them heavy losses and they are steadily losing ground."

ITALIAN SITUATION CONTINUES CRITICAL

Towns on Austrian Border Make Preparations for Siege—Break Expected Momentarily.

Rome, via Paris, May 13.—Former Premier Giolitti regarded as leader of the anti-war party in a letter to the Tribune declares he came to Rome because he was summoned here to express his views. His convictions have not changed since he expressed them in a speech before parliament discussing the demonstrations against him. He professes not to understand how persons who claim to be inspired by principles of complete liberty have so little respect for other people's opinion.

Austria Ready for Siege. Udine, Italy, May 13.—Every preparation has been made for the prosecution of a state of siege in all the Austrian territory which borders on Italy. The government already is in the hands of the police and military. Italians whose homes are in Austria already have fled across the frontier in great numbers.

ENGLAND DETERMINES TO PROTECT GERMANS

Imperial Detective Bureau Calls Emergency Constables to Service Today.

London, May 13.—Scotland Yard today issued an emergency call for all special constables to report immediately for duty. This would appear to be the only precautionary measure taken by the authorities this morning for the protection of German residents. For them the anti-German rioting and attack in poor quarters of London and Liverpool as well as in Manchester, Birkenhead, Glasgow, South End and elsewhere would appear to have ceased.

BOSSHARD AMENDS WATERPOWER BILL

Vote to Enactment Is Not Yet Reached, When Fourth Substitute Amendment Is Introduced.

Madison, May 13.—An active debate on the water power bill, hopes of a vote of enactment on the Akeley bill as amended by the conservative committee were destroyed today when Senator Boshard offered a fourth substitute amendment necessitating the bill and all amendments to go over until the amendment is printed. The bill was made a special order again for next Wednesday morning. The Boshard amendment does not repeal the present law but amends it by striking out the clause giving the state power to regulate or amend franchises at any time and eliminating the plan of compensation when the state takes over water powers. It also provides for what the author describes as fair compensation.

WEST FRONT IS SCENE OF HOT BATTLES

GERMANS MAKE ATTACK NEAR YPRES WHILE FRENCH PUSH FORWARD NEAR ARRAS.

CAPTURE HILL NO. 125

Paris Statement Tells of Bayonet Fighting at Carancy Where Strong German Position Was Taken.

London, May 13.—At two points on the western line of operations, offensive movements are under way. The first, initiated by the Germans, is against the British, French and Belgian forces, near Ypres, while the second is the pushing of French troops against the Germans to the north of Arras.

For the moment, however, both of these attacks would appear to have been checked.

On the Buckovina frontier Petrograd reports a brilliant success won by the Russian Cossacks cavalry over the Austrian infantry. The Russian horsemen, forcing their way through a series of barbed wire entanglements, dislodged the Austrians from three lines of trenches and captured 2,000 prisoners, a battery of quick-firing guns, several searchlights and a whole string of caissons.

Paris, May 13.—The French war office this afternoon issued the following on the progress of hostilities: "We won brilliant successes Wednesday evening to the north of Arras. At Notre Dame de Lorette we are master of the fort as well as the chapel."

"During Wednesday night we also took by assault all the villages of Carancy as well as the forest on the north of it, Hill No. 125. The German garrison stationed in this village and in this forest wood, was composed of one battalion of the 106th regiment of infantry, one battalion of Bavarian Chasseurs and six companies of pioneers, 300 men to a company. These forces have made of Carancy during the entire night put up a desperate resistance to our attack, delivered against a maze of trenches, blockhouses and narrow passages."

"We broke down this resistance of the enemy at a break of day we were in complete mastery of the situation. Our troops killed hundreds of Germans at the point of the bayonet. We made 1,050 prisoners of whom thirty are officers included in these latter is the colonel and commandant of the battalion of Chasseurs."

"At the southern exit of Souchez our positions were subjected yesterday to a violent attack on part of the enemy nevertheless we retained them."

"At Neuville our attacks on the village itself and to the north of the village made progress. The forest of Le Pretre was occupied yesterday a new line of German trenches."

RUSSIANS PLAN REVENGE

London, May 13.—A Reuters dispatch from Petrograd gives the following official statement regarding the eastern operations: "In the fighting between the Vistula and the Carpathians May 8 and 9, the Germans tried to break up a strike by the lightning rapidity of the blow directed at the neighborhood of Kiosno by the seventh division of the flower of the German army, after a heavy artillery operation."

The Germans gained on tactical skill. Our reserve flank blow enabled our army to rearrange a line of advantageous positions alleviating all fear of final retreat. Our army has received strong reinforcements and is ready to exact heavy revenge. Our falling back was carried out methodically. The enemy's loss was heavy."

DETROIT CAR LINES TIED UP BY STRIKE

Refusal of Company to Reinstates Motorist Accused of Mishandling Car Leads to Trouble.

Detroit, May 13.—Not a city street car is being operated in Detroit this morning, as a result of a strike by Detroit United Railway conductors and motormen, because of the refusal to reinstate a motorman for alleged mishandling of a street car. ## ADVOCATES STATE AID FOR SOCIETY RIFF RAFF

Madison, Wis., May 13.—Assemblyman Carl Minkley and Mrs. L. Kahlenberg, the latter representing the state federation of women's clubs, urged the finance committee to recommend the Minkley bill providing that a ward in the state reformatory for women at Taycheedah, now under construction, shall be set aside for the treatment of women afflicted with venereal diseases and those who are confirmed drug victims. Laboratory care is to be furnished. They argued that society will be benefited if these unfortunate are given corrective treatment rather than repeated jail sentences, which do more harm than good, both to the offender and society.

STINGING ARGUMENT IS MADE BY STATE TO DARNELL JURY

Prosecuting Attorney Delivers Biting Tirade Against Pastor Charged With Violating Mann Act.

Madison, May 13.—The fate of James Morrison Darnell, who has been on trial for three days on the charge of violating the Mann white slave act, it is expected will rest by noon today, in his closing argument for the government, Prosecuting Attorney Guy D. Goff, addressing the jury said in part:

"For three years life to Darnell was a Belschazzar feast, but he closed the door of his soul to honor that he might gnaw the bone in peace, and hear not the gable of the goose beneath his window, and the watch dog's warning."

"Must a man be permitted to walk scathless just because he carries with him the odor of sanctity? To let this man go unwhipped of justice would be to let the cornerstone of anarchy be laid."

"Men who have adopted the dual life, must be rebuked. When a man becomes linked with a woman not his wife, there is more hope for her than for him, according to the teachings of the Nazarene. Publicans and harlots enter the kingdom before Pharisees and hypocrites. But whether true or not it must be true, if there be a hell, that there is in it no corner so dark as that which furnishes the punishment for these polished, polluted fakes of the church who make religion a shining vice."

ESTABLISH GUARDS IN PANAMA CITIES

Recent Riots Between Soldiers of U. S. A. and Panama Forces Caused Permanent Provd Guards

Panama, May 13.—The recent riots between United States soldiers of the Panama Canal forces and the Panamanian police in both Panama and Colon, in which several on both sides have been injured, have made it necessary for Brigadier General Clarence R. Edwards, U. S. A., commanding the Panama Canal Troops, to establish large permanent provost guards in both cities. In Panama the guard is composed of Company E, Tenth Infantry, Captain F. W. Coleman, while at Colon the various Coast Artillery Company stationed at Toro Point are assigned to that duty in turn.

An arrangement has been made with the Panamanian Government whereby the soldier guards are furnished with the regulation Panamanian police club. In addition they wear their service revolvers. It is their duty to patrol all places which the soldiers are likely to frequent, especially the Trenchard district. Soldiers are no longer arrested by the native police. All such cases are handled by the soldier guard.

At Panama the patrol company has its own camp on the side of Ancon Hill only a short distance from the new Administration Building and within easy marching distance from the main part of Panama City. A guard-house is maintained where refractory soldiers are confined. It is planned to build permanent barracks for this company the construction to begin at an early date.

CHICAGOANS LOST WHEN LINER SINKS

Assemblyman Hansen Wants Better Laws for Transportation and Store of Powder.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—Assemblyman Carl Hansen made an argument for what he called "better laws" before the senate committee on public welfare yesterday afternoon in advocating concurrence in the Hoffman bill allowing municipalities and towns to regulate the storage of explosives. The bill was opposed by D. M. Maxey, of Washburn, representing the Dupont interests.

Mr. Hansen charged that the Good-year explosion in Milwaukee was caused by dynamite. Mr. Maxey quoted State Fire Marshal Clem Host as authority for the statement that the Good-year explosion was caused by gases generated by heat working on rubber products. He asserted the bill will not bring the results expected.

DR. ALLEN AROUSES ENMITY OF EDITOR IN MAKING SURVEY

Investigator Bares Reason Why Richard Lloyd Jones Made Attempt to Suppress His Report.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—That an attempt backed up by a threat was made to suppress part of the Allen report on the University was the statement made today by Dr. W. H. Allen, following the release of the entire report by the state board of public affairs.

The man, who made the threat was Richard L. Jones, chairman of the board of visitors of the University and editor of the Madison State Journal, according to Dr. Allen.

The part he didn't want made public was evidence submitted in the survey report that the University's press agent had acted as a special correspondent for the Madison State Journal, had done work under the name of Karl B. Weinman and had been paid for this work not by the Journal but by the University.

The threat was made that if this information was made public an attempt would be made by Mr. Jones to discredit the whole report, according to Dr. Allen. Dr. Allen did not say whether Mr. Jones had actually carried out the threat, except to point out that Mr. Jones' paper has been "most vindictive and unfair in its attacks on the survey." As far as the attempt at suppression and the threats are concerned no mention is made in the report. This, however, is what Dr. Allen had to say:

"It was in November I believe, that I had a conversation with Mr. Jones during which he brought up the subject of publishing the matter in regard to the University press agent. He said that it wasn't necessary for the editor of the Madison State Journal to publish the report. He said that he would make a report, which I intended to do. If you sent a report out on a subject and tell you only that part of the story that he thought you ought to know? I asked him, I would expect him to use his judgment in the matter. After some further conversation during which time I made it plain that the exhibit now known as No. 29 would be published, Mr. Jones said that if I did not withdraw he would be forced to discredit the whole report. And from various antagonistic and unfair articles that have appeared in his paper I would imagine he is trying to do this."

The contention of both Dr. Allen and the University are found in the complete survey and from them it is possible to deduce the following facts: Last August the board of regents voted an extra $200 to be paid to C. W. Holman, University press agent, for extra work he had done during July and August. This extra work was in the form of a series of articles under the general head of "What Our University Does For Us." They were sent out to about forty state papers.

Mr. Jones, Holman wrote the articles "not as an official of the University, but as a special correspondent by personal favor on his part to the State Journal." The articles were Mr. Jones' letter to Dean Reber. Mr. Holman's salary was $100 a month, but during July and August he received $200, the extra compensation for the extra work he did for the State Journal, which were published during the campaign and were signed "Karl B. Weinman."

In answer to an inquiry by Dr. Allen, Dean Reber wrote that "he had no knowledge regarding the special articles appearing in the Madison State Journal." At that time he was acting president of the board of regents. After his correspondence with President Van Hise, he recommended that the extra money be paid Holman.

SENDS NOTE TO GERMANY LATE TODAY

PRESIDENT PUTS FINISHING TOUCHES ON MESSAGE RELATIVE TO THE LUSITANIA.

EXPECT PROMPT REPLY

Washington Believes German Foreign Office Will Give Matter Immediate Attention.—Text of Note Still Withheld.

Washington, May 13.—President Wilson during the forenoon today took a finishing touch on the note to be dispatched today to Germany demanding guarantees that attacks on merchantmen carrying non-combatants shall end, and for reparation for violation of American rights in the war zone.

The note will not be made public here until after it has been put in code, which probably will be late today and when the document has been started on its way to Berlin.

Few Changes Made. A few changes are believed to have been made in the document, the main principles as outlined to the cabinet on Tuesday being maintained. While couched in friendly terms, it is firm and does not say what steps will be taken or what course will be pursued in the event of an unfavorable reply, but indicates that the United States will spare no pains, either by diplomatic representations or otherwise to obtain an acquiescence in its position. The note will be given out tonight and published in the morning. Although no mention is understood to be made as to the time when a reply is expected from Germany, the belief here is that the German foreign office, realizing the state of feeling in the United States, will answer promptly.

Cash Can't Pay for Lives. Officials who have seen the note made it clear today that it makes no specific demands for financial reparation in general terms and avoiding any impression that the loss of Americans on the Lusitania could be atoned for by the mere payment of cash indemnities.

Although nearly a week has passed since the sinking of the Lusitania, messages regarding the disaster continue to arrive at the White House from all parts of the world. Practically all of them express confidence in the president.

GERMAN EMBASSY'S STATEMENT

The German embassy issued this statement:

"The German embassy stated today that no statement or intimation had been given by the embassy or any officials of the embassy concerning what response will be made to American note regarding the Lusitania."

"This was brought out by statements appearing in the press this morning to the effect the officials of the German embassy had outlined the position of the German government toward the American note regarding the sinking of the Lusitania and declared the reply would be a polite but firm refusal to cease submarine warfare against belligerent merchant ships."

"It was pointed out that the embassy itself had been ignoring the terms of the American note, that it has received no instructions whatever from the German government regarding the note, and formally to declare no official connection with the embassy expressed any opinion on the subject at all."

$1,000 A DAY HUNTING GOLD

Alaska Prospectors Find Deposit Yielding $1,635 Worth of Metal a Pan.

Fairbanks, Alaska.—A placer deposit yielding gold values as high as $1,635 a pan has been struck on Hammond river, in the Klondike district, 65 miles north of the Arctic circle, according to an authentic report received here. The camp is in an almost inaccessible district 900 miles from Fairbanks.

The report, dated March 25, said two miners obtained one pan worth $1,635 and another worth $1,632 the same day. Average pickups of nuggets made in the bottom of their shaft in six days amounted to $1,000 a day, it was reported.

Two other miners, working a claim in the same district, were reported to have picked up nuggets worth $4,000 in six days.

COMMISSIONERS MEET LIGHT PLAN BACKERS AND TALK OVER IDEA

Session Held Last Evening—Must Touch Civic Pride of Many to Really Get New System.

Members of the city commission and the board of directors of the Janesville Commercial club had a meeting last night. They had under consideration the project to give the downtown section of the city of Janesville a twentieth century system of illumination.

The Commercial club has been at work on the project for the past six months. The business section has been canvassed and re-canvassed with the result that approximately fifty per cent of the property-owners lining the proposed line of lighting have expressed a desire to give the business section an up-to-date appearance. More property-owners will have to fall in line if the object is to be realized.

Matters relative to the city taking over the scheme and putting it through were objected to by Mayor Paterson and the commissioners on the grounds that the system installed would be a source of higher taxes. The city has already promised the maintenance of the lights and the system following installation if the Commission can only get them in. Otherwise they are to remain at present time for a more modern manner of illumination for the downtown section than is at right now.

Members of the Commercial club, quite a number of property-owners and merchants have been without avail. The club lighting committee, however, has not given up all hope and are continuing to work the idea as much as previously. The Commercial club is determined to place the system in Janesville, a member said this morning, and it is going to work hard to do it.

Owners and merchants do not contribute their help then we may have to turn to public subscription to reach the goal.

"Janesville," he continued, "is certainly large enough to have a modern and up-to-date system of street lighting. The arc light is all right in its place, but if we are going to lose that, we have to provide a far better means of lighting than we have at the present time."

Practically every city in the country the size of Janesville has or is busy at work either installing or figuring on new lighting systems. They are doing away with the old arc lights and are installing a system that is a means of publicity and also growth and of wealth.

"We can do the same thing here in Janesville and it is time that we do." It is understood that if the Commercial club succeeds in reaching a favorable conclusion in its lighting scheme the commission will order the unsightly telegraph and telephone poles out before them on this matter was abandoned some time ago to await the result of the campaign of the Commercial club for better lighting.

Don't go home without a bottle of "Allen's Cough Syrup," as you may need it today for cold or cough that has developed since you were last at home.

DECIDE POPULARITY CONTEST WEDNESDAY

Miss Ruth Souman and Leslie Stewart Win High Honors for Scholarship at the High School.

The popularity contest at the high school ended on Wednesday, when the students cast their ballots for the most popular girl and boy students in the institution, from the standpoint of scholarship, democratic spirit and service rendered to the school. When the votes were carefully counted, the announcement was made that Miss Ruth Souman and Leslie Stewart had been awarded the honors by overwhelming majorities.

Miss Souman received four times the number of votes secured by Miss Margaret Birmingham, winner of second place, while Miss Birmingham secured but one vote more than did Miss Evelyn Walsh, winner of third place. Leslie Stewart received over twice the number of votes obtained by Harold Stickney, third place going to Allen Dearborn. Last year Victor Hemming and Boss Ewell were winners in a similar contest.

The object of the contest is not to denote the most popular boy or girl by merely applying the term popularity, but to give the vote to those who, in the opinion of the students, are given three points with which to judge their choices for the places. How they rank in their work, scholarship being the term used; their disposition and all that goes with it; and popular feeling with the other students, and what service has been rendered to the school by them, are all taken into consideration. Principal Shearer was well pleased with the outcome of the contest, and declared that the students all used good judgment in selecting their candidates for the places.

In summing up the work of the two winners both have been of great service to the school. Miss Souman has been a big aid in organizing the school orchestra this year, while Mr. Stewart has the honor of being the only other high basketball player with Hemming who has won three sweaters in as many years.

OHIO CONCERN GETS COURT HOUSE JOB

General Fireproofing Company of Youngstown Will Remodel County Clerk's Office.

Negotiations are under way between the building committee of the county board and representatives of the General Fireproofing company of Youngstown, Ohio, for remodeling of the county clerk's office so as to accommodate both the county clerk and the county treasurer. No contract for the job will be drawn up until the Ohio company submitted the lowest bid of the four firms competing. It was estimated that the job must be finished within 45 to 60 days from May 12th. The improvement will be of the latest improved type, fire proof throughout and arranged with the idea of being as convenient as possible.

The south end of the present office occupied by the county clerk will be partitioned off and will be used solely for the county supervisors. The offices of the clerk and treasurer will be located in the north end of the present building. It is probable that County Superintendent Amelund will occupy the office to be vacated by the county treasurer.

TWO SPEEDERS PAY FIFTEEN AND COSTS

Charles E. Moore, County Highway Commissioner, and C. Carlson Plead Guilty to Violation.

Results of the police department's crusade against speeding was evidenced in the municipal court this morning, when two Janesville men paid fines and fifteen dollars each for violating the city ordinance in traveling over fifteen miles per hour. Charles E. Moore, county highway commissioner, was fined fifteen dollars for traveling in excess of fifteen miles per hour on South Main street in his haste to reach home several days ago. He paid the fine and costs which amounted to $17.40.

C. Carlson, a young carpenter, did not have a speedometer on his motorcycle and while he was "hitting the high places" on Milwaukee avenue yesterday at a pace better than twenty miles an hour, Motorcycle Police-man Cain was close behind him, keeping a close watch on the tell-tale needle of the motor's speedometer. He also paid $17.40 for the offense against the city ordinance.

"The patrolmen have instructions to bring in any 'speeder' no matter what it is and if there is sufficient evidence in each case they will go before court. There is no need of any auto or motorcycle driver traveling on the streets above the limit and it is a dangerous practice."

The Ugly Gink.

Good looks don't buy the shirkin steak. Nor handsome eyes the coal; A man whose face a clock would stop Is generally up near the top.

And reaches first the goal. The gawky kid with flaming hair We used to guy in school. Knew not the joy that beauty brings.

But when it came to learning things He never was a fool. The prettiest young girl in town Was proud to be his wife; He swam the bank, a railroad line, A gas plant and a coal mine, And is well fixed in life.

The pretty boys with curly hair Who hand kind words on every hand Are selling soap from door to door. Or clerking in a dry goods store, Or managing a peanut stand.

UNCLE ASNER.

Let not the left hand know when the right hand is doing somebody. An extra eye helps sometimes. They really do. A village milliner is always a year or two behind the times or nine years behind, we can't tell which.

Declaration of Independence.

A Richmond (Mo.) barber thus defines his law: "To whom it may concern: I was proprietor of a barber shop in Richmond for twenty-six years. During that time, I have stated—not as an idle boast, but in a positive manner—that the legislature wasn't big enough and that congress didn't have power enough and any enemies weren't strong enough and the Barbers' Protective association didn't reach far enough to prohibit me from serving the public any time they really wanted to."

They really do. I would get up out of bed and shave a customer at the dead hour of midnight the same as the doctor would be called to see a patient. It was a matter of business with me. I was the doctor, the farmer's old sick dame and the laboring man's old thin dame always were good enough for me."

Perhaps You've Never Heard This One. White man (to negro): "What's your name?" Negro: "Mah name? Poe, sah."

"Perhaps you're named after Edgar Allen Poe?" "Who-me? Why, Ah is Edgar Allen Poe."

Many a mother who didn't raise her boy to be a soldier has to keep on bending over a wash-tub because he keeps on soldiering.

THE HAIR BEAUTY THAT BELONGS TO YOU

So many who have long known that hair beauty was certain to follow up on systematic hair care have been loath to commence what they mistake for too much trouble. Proper hair care means only keeping the scalp and hair perfectly clean by use of some preparation made for shampooing, not for general cleansing. You can enjoy the best that is known for about three cents a shampoo by getting a package of Canthrox from your druggist. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth. Advertisement.

Amendment is Made to Retain New Madison High School—No $200,000 Physics Building.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., May 13.—After one of the most spectacular debates in the assembly this year, marked by two attempted calls of the house, the assembly last night amended the Grell bill so as to retain the university high school, but incorporated an amendment that will repeal the appropriation of $200,000 for a physics building against the passage of the bill made by Assemblyman Hambrecht.

He said that when Mr. Grell said he "could not destroy the high school he turned table and took the physics building." He quoted from Mr. Grell's speech earlier in the day in which Grell said that a physics building was badly needed at the university.

If the present physics building was turned into a state building, said Assemblyman Cretney, "the industrial commission would surely condemn the present building as unsafe."

The bill was then engrossed by a vote of 42 to 44. It will now go to the finance committee for further consideration. The assembly refused to reconsider the vote by which last week it sent to engrossment the Budlong bill for one day's rest in schools for railroad telegraphers and station agents.

Without debate the assembly engrossed the Woodward bill giving county boards greater supervision of the construction of state highways and curtailing the activities of the state highway commission. There was a long debate, however, on a second Woodward bill to appropriate $300,000 annually for the state's share of state highway aid. At first the assembly refused to kill the Aulenbacher amendment cutting this appropriation to $500,000. Later the amendment was refused passage by a vote of 41 to 47. The assembly then killed the Frechot amendment making the state's share $1,000,000, and then engrossed the original Woodward bill fixing the appropriation at $800,000 annually.

Tiger flesh is eaten in many parts of India, though it is somewhat tough and starchy. Lion flesh is very good to eat, and much in favor among the Hotentots and other South African tribes, who are also fond of rhinoceros as any good Englishman is of a rump-steak. Rhinoceros flesh tastes rather like something between beef and pork.

SCHEDULE BIG RACES ON GERMAN COURSES

German Horse Breeding Has Been Nearly Ruined By the War—Large Opposition Against Sport.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, May 13.—Devotees of horse racing and breeders who have been all but ruined, have finally succeeded in securing a resumption of some racing this season, after canvasing all who are interested in the sport. Plans have been completed for a series of six races at Hoppengarten, near Berlin, beginning Sunday, May 16, and continuing each Sunday thereafter.

No effort has been made as yet to secure a resumption of steeple chasing or trotting races. The former is regarded as practically impossible because almost every gentleman rider in Germany is now in the field.

A large part of the opposition that has been voiced against racing has been from persons who oppose anything like frivolity in wartime. The racing proponents argue that if necessary the world sport and pleasure should be crushed, and that racing should be conducted purely for the sake of keeping the breed of race horses at a high standard, and for the benefit of stables that otherwise would have been out of existence. They do not go beyond July in their present plans. The sporting clubs that must arrange the races undoubtedly will make up cards for August, September, October and early November if the public supports the races now arranged.

Nevertheless, the biggest races of the season, in point of usual interest and purses, are all scheduled and have about the normal number of entries. These events include the Berlin Grand Prix with a purse of 100,000 marks, and the Hamburg Derby, purse 150,000 marks, both planned for July.

The entries for both these races were made in 1913, and have dropped in size of course, but not below normal. Thus, there remained, after the last forfeit day toward the middle of April, thirty entries for the Grand Prix and forty for the Derby.

Racing enthusiasts, breeders especially, are sure that the season will see events at Berlin, Hamburg, Frankfurt, Cologne, Dresden and Leipzig, and perhaps at Stuttgart and Munich.

Both the kings of racing, the king of Bavaria and owners of stables and may help the general movement.

A number of tracks will be closed. That at Ruhleben, near Berlin, is now the site of the big detention camp for British civilians, at Grunewald there is a hospital used for those wounded in the war, and one of the tracks at Cologne is used for landing cattle.

Another factor which has added to the difficulties is the shortage of trainers and jockeys. Various sporting and jockey clubs of Germany for years have engaged American and Englishmen trainers, and those just at present are scarce.

Soon after the war began some 22 leading trainers and a dozen jockeys, the leaders of their profession in Germany, were interned at Ruhleben.

When racing became a practical certainty again its backers began sending the men out, and succeeded in having eleven trainers released. The move got to be known.

MINNESOTA TO HAVE BOXING COMMISSION

St. Paul Promoters Will Match Mike Gibbons Against Jack Dillon in Early June.—Boxing Chatter.

By Strikes.
Wisconsin is soon to have a rival in legalized boxing, as boxing under the rule of a state commission was recently sanctioned by the state lawmakers in Minnesota, and the first bout planned to be staged will be in the first week of June. The St. Paul promoters are opening negotiations to bring Mike Gibbons, accepted champion of the middleweight class, and Jack Dillon, the Hoosier "mankiller," together for a ten round clash in about a month. Middleweights will be popular in Minnesota, as Mike and Tommy Gibbons hail from St. Paul.

Gibbons and McFarland had dropped from the spotlight of the sport publicity when McFarland showed a little "sag" in refusing to go through with his match with the St. Paul star at the middleweight limit, 145 pounds.

McFarland does not appear to be earning in his declarations about winning three titles, but as a press artist he rivals Bantling Nelson. Along with McFarland's passing from the ranks of pugilism comes the news that Eddie McGorty, the Oshkosh pride, is on his way to Australia, where he will appear in three big bouts against the Kangaroo middleweights, with whom he has had so much success. Jeff Smith, an American who won gold and fame in Australia in the last two years as a middleweight, is in New York looking for trouble in the 155 pound division. The coming of Smith will add fresh interest in the middleweight class, as Jeff is supposed to be about the best edged glove artist that has been coming from the ranks in recent years. Smith holds a full fledged twenty round decision over Jimmy Clabby, who was once looked upon as a world's champion.

There will be something moving on the lightweight map, as Willie Ritchie may be induced to take on Charlie White in New York on May 24, but the American champion seems to prefer the stage, as was his old custom, to the squared ring. White has been the most active lightweight as he has whipped and scored knockouts over a bunch of lesser lights. White beat Murphy a week ago with a left hook knockout punch, and outpointed Hal Stewart last night. He faces Phil Bloom at Brooklyn on the 15th and on May 24 is booked to meet Ritchie again for the American title.

White is boxing in superb form against the lesser lights, but against Ritchie he may show his old ability of battling good against a high class man. His bout with Leach Cross showed this weakness. Joe Mandot is figuring in a number of battles and will meet Johnny Griffiths, a tough Ohio title contender, on May 17.

which will be a severe test for the southern lightweight. Gunboat Smith is plodding along collecting coin, as he beat Gilbert Monday night and takes on Jack Dillon, in New York. Friday night over the no-decision route, Dillon whipped the tar badly in a recent Milwaukee battle, and the defeat has been a thorn in the Gunner's side since. Jim Coffey, since his K. O. victory over Al Reich in three rounds, looks up as the strongest rival of Jess Willard for the world's championship. The Dublin giant has New York fans from Tipperary believe he could topple over the Kansas giant without trouble. New York promoters are seeking to put Coffey against Gunboat Smith on May 28th.

WHITE'S LEFT HOOK PUTS OUT STEWART

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fort Wayne, Ind., May 13.—It took Charlie White a little more than five rounds to connect his thunderbolt left hook to the unprotected jaw of Hal Stewart, but when it came in the sixth round, Stewart took the full-on, White's most valuable fighting weapon, the left jab, and the battle for him against the Ohio man here last night.

Stewart started strong and gave the Chicagoan a good break, for four rounds, with White tearing after him, less skilled opponent in an unusually warlike fashion. White had no time for boxing in the sixth but fought Stewart. When Stewart missed a left swing, White shot through a short hook that caught the Ohioan on the face. It was a terrific punch, and when Stewart doubled forward, his head went back, and he fell on his back. This is the first knockout Stewart ever received and his record indicates bouts with Welsh, Saylor and Mandot.

Bout is Stopped.
New York, May 12.—Referee Billy Roche stopped the scheduled ten round match between Jimmy Clabby and George Chip in the eighth round, and declared the bout to contest. Clabby forced Chip to cover at the start, and then both boxers stalled until three warnings were given. In the eighth they were ordered out of the ring. These two middleweights have fought each other so many times, a no-decision bout is like a vaudeville act to them.

A Boston paper deplores the practice of a coacher yelling at an opposing player who is going for a foul ball the name of a teammate so as to cause confusion, possible injury and the loss of the foul right enough, but a much worse practice ethically is the so-called "riding" of players of one team by riders of another.

WISCONSIN DIRECTOR ON COLLEGE SPORTS

Dr. Eblert Gives Views on Manner of Conducting College Athletics.

(By Hal Sheridan.)
New York, May 13.—So frequently the charge of professional "ringers" on college teams goes unchallenged that it is encouraging to find a man who can speak with authority on the subject. Such a man is Dr. George W. Eblert, professor and director of physical education at the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Eblert speaks plainly and his theories are interesting.

"With the exception of football, nearly every other intercollegiate sport is conducted at a loss," said Dr. Eblert. "It is the surplus of receipts over expenses of the football squad that makes possible three-fourths of the intercollegiate games. Intercollegiate contests are but the natural expression of certain innate tendencies characteristic of English and American youth and those of other nationalities who have come under their influence. It is the tendency to match one's strength and skill against that of another."

"It is the same fundamental factor that accounts for all English and American sport, both amateur and professional, and is the basis of the Athletic Union, the Amateur Athletic federation, the National Golf association, the National Amateur Baseball association, the Public Schools Athletic League, Y. M. C. A. leagues, Young Men's Catholic Athletic association, the American National and Federal professional Baseball leagues and the American League in fact, and city leagues and associations of every sort."

"Whenever a group of boys or young men associate together long enough to form a team, and under them combined in a team are better than any other combination in the group, they become eager to try out their team against the team of some other group. This is the basis of the whole group pits itself against its neighbors, and the circle once started continues in ever widening circles, reaching from the match between the teams of two neighboring street gangs to the great international contests between teams representing the nations of the whole world."

"The elimination of intercollegiate sports will automatically cut off the income from those sports and there will be no funds therefore to devote to intramural sports except as students are taxed, or the college appropriates cash from its regular funds, or endowment is provided by generous alumni or others."

"That intercollegiate and intramural athletics are not mutually exclusive of each other is shown by the fact that sports for all students

McGOORTY TO FIGHT STARS OF AUSTRALIA

Eddie McGorty.

Eddie McGorty, the Oshkosh middleweight, who is considered one of the top-notchers of the game of pugilism, is going to make another invasion of Australia, which is expected to result in several other American millers of class following his example. Reports from Australia state that new boxers are cropping up with great speed, which would make it appear that the war is not having such a bad effect on the fistie sport there.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

Broken noses are all the go in the major leagues this season. Birdie Cree, Polly Peritt and Charlie Herzog are on the hospital list. They all came in on a different way.

Advises from Sydney tell of a notable swimming performance achieved by E. Friedlander of Kalgoorlie in winning the fourth annual swim through Perth, a distance of five miles. Friedlander, who was third in the 1913 race, is in business at Kalgoorlie and uses crutches, his legs being useless owing to some physical weakness. To be under such circumstances, notwithstanding that he has massive arms and shoulders, is an undoubted triumph.

Handicapped a 22-00, he did the trip in 2:08:30, which is 28:30 better than the time of last year's winner. He beat the scratch man, W. Reed, by one-half minute. Reed made the fastest time, 1:47:00. This is a record for the race.

Snodgrass has usurped Burns' prerogative. He is leading the National league in pitched bases. The Giants are leading the league in games pitched from them.

Wally Schang is no longer considered as being among the great catchers of the American league. In fact, Schang, aside from being acknowledged a good hitter and a fast man on the bases, is not doing satisfactory work behind the bat or in his throwing and with Jack Lapp also on the down grade Connie Mack is worrying over his backstoppers in addition to his many other troubles.

J. Hasselbacher, the Philadelphia boy, State College has one of the best college pitchers in the east. His most recent feat was to hold Dartmouth to five hits and strike out fourteen men.

Whether it is due to the stimulus produced through Kilbane's title to win or whether it is merely a coincidence the fact is that Ohio is rapidly developing into the hotbed of leading featherweights. Attempts to rattle off the five leading 125-pounders in the game today and year are not difficult to collude with at least three Clevelanders—Kilbane, Brock and De-

Goodyear Laminated Tubes

Built Layer on Layer—Extra Thick

Here is something every motorist should know.

Goodyear Laminated Tubes are built of many thin layers—each of pure rubber—vulcanized together. No flaw can be hidden as in a thick piece of rubber. It is seen and eliminated. Every layer is perfect.

Such a Tube can't leak. And our valve patch can't leak, because it is part of the Tube and not stuck on.

Remember that. Many a tire trouble is due to leaky Tubes.

Goodyear Laminated Tubes are extra heavy. They have always outworn any tire. But this year we have added 14 per cent to their average thickness—all pure rubber.

laney. George Chaney, until several months ago, was rated as Kilbane's nearest competitor. Well, Matt Brock recently defeated usually finds a way to beat Brock. And in the stage of development we have Artie Root, Luke Glinney and the amateur champ, Arthur Strawwhacker. Alvin Miller of Lorain is a formidable boy, and Roger O'Malley of Toledo has been coming to the front place.

Pat Moran's recipe for winning the pennant is a very good one. It is to win nine games out of every ten.

Notwithstanding that Lajole will be forty this year is out of the ordinary. The Philadelphia didn't get a single until he made two home runs and a two-bagger.

The battling experience of Beals Becker this year is out of the ordinary. The Philadelphia didn't get a single until he made two home runs and a two-bagger.

Jess Willard isn't the howling success on the stage that his predecessors were. Failure of the people to flock into the theaters where Jess performed has forced the conqueror of Johnson to try a new scheme to get that million-dollar bank account which his backers declared he would get on the stage following a victory over Johnson. Willard has been forced to join a wild west show. Perhaps he will have greater success there. Perhaps he will not. It would be better for his chosen profession if he were forced to abandon that work, too.

Joe Dawson Expected to Drive in Classic.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Indianapolis, May 13.—Despite the fact that he came within an ace of losing his life in last year's Indianapolis 500-mile race, being laid up for months as the result of injuries when his car overturned, Joe Dawson, winner of the 1912 Hoosier contest, has announced his intention of again competing in that event, and is now looking for a car.

Joe's selection, it is thought, will be a Maxwell, Ray Harroun, manager of that outfit, an old racing pal of his, having held a berth open for him for months. Ray says he would rather have Joe drive for him than anyone else, because he wins his races before he starts.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it and you find the strength that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

THE PROPER SPIRIT.

Generally speaking the proper spirit is being shown by the newspapers of the United States in standing firmly behind the president and his attitude in the present crisis. There are publications, however, who either through failure to appreciate what the consequences may result in, seek to excuse the responsibility of the German government for the sinking of the Lusitania, criticize the American government, and attach the blame entirely upon England.

However, the press of the country realizes the strained relations that exist and refrain from hampering the activity of the administration by any casual advice as how the government is to conduct its foreign relations. One of the most striking examples of the loyalty of the press, especially of the so-called foreign press to the president, is illustrated in the following editorial from the Warhelt, published in New York in the interests and for the promotion of the Jewish residents of this country. The Warhelt says:

"The Frankfurter Zeitung, speaking of the possibility of war between the United States and Germany, says that the United States cannot declare war because of the millions of Germans, Irish and Jews 'being in the way'."

"The Jews would very much like the Frankfurter Zeitung and others to refrain from mentioning them in their discussions of a war between the United States and Germany."

"If mentioned they must be, then let it be said in their names. The Jews of the United States will all, to the last man, stand behind President Wilson and the United States government."

"We take the responsibility for the statement that in all international matters in which the United States is involved, the Jews, as a national unit, are the only ones who stand solidly behind the Washington administration."

"This was true with regard to the Mexican question; this is just as true now with regard to the world war."

"The Jews have their sympathies, but when living up to the president's neutrality proclamation is concerned, they will not be found among those who under the pretense of neutrality carry on a systematic agitation against one or another of the warring nations."

"The attitude of the Jews toward the sinking of the Lusitania may serve as an example of their loyalty and patriotism. A survey of the Jewish press and a comparison between the sermons in the churches recently and those in the synagogues of the country will prove conclusively that the Jews are undivided in their support of the president and are ready to sacrifice him and their country in any emergency that may arise."

A TEST FOR CIVILIZATION.

"Influence of a good example is, unfortunately, only equalled by the influence of a bad example. Germany, without adequate reason, violates the territory of peaceful and innocent Belgium. In doing so she advances the proposition that a state is unmoral; and that rules which govern personal conduct do not apply to a state which desires to expand at the expense of its neighbors," says the Wall Street Journal.

"Like all the peoples of the world, who are truly progressive, in the respect that the aggregate of the public conscience sets a standard for the individual, this is to us a detestable doctrine. The state has power to punish, and the conception of a law above the individual not imbued with the highest morality is detestable."

"But Germany set the example; and its consequences are plainly seen. Japan demands from China humiliating concessions, to which it is not entitled, concessions which it can only enforce by arms. Italy prepares to make war upon Austria, not because she has any real grievance, but because she thinks Austria cannot help herself.

"This is the Bernhardt-Treitschke doctrine, worked out to its logical conclusion. The institution of autocratic and unmoral states governed in practice by a relatively small bureaucratic clique, means a world perpetually at war. The world guarantee of peace is government by consent of the governed. No state can long endure which does not conserve the highest qualities of its people."

"Perhaps an incorrect inference, drawn from British constitutional practice, has influenced the advocates of autocracy. It is said there that 'the king can do no wrong.' This did not prevent the British people from cutting off the head of Charles I., or kicking out James II. The king is responsible, in the person of his ministers. He can do relatively little without them, and they are directly responsible to the people. This is true democracy, but applied to a state which does not have the advantage of the American or British constitution the rule does not work."

"It is not true to say that the state can do no wrong. When it is not responsible to all the people who constitute it, the state can commit appalling errors and crimes. We are wasting our time in talking of legislating universal peace. But such peace is by no means visionary if we cling firmly to the principle of government by consent of the governed, where the best that is in every one of us is responsible for national honor and international fidelity. This is not merely the better way, but the only way, in which a foolish world can be saved from the threatened relapse into barbarism."

CIGARETS AND ADULTS.

The Madison Democrat sums up the situation as to the proposed cigarette bill that is before the legislature for passage by saying that a bill before the legislature permits the sale of cigarettes to adults. A preposterous Wisconsin law, enacted in the heyday of progressive nonsense, forbade such sale.

Of course cigarettes should be kept away from minors scrupulously, but there is not a scintilla of sense in denying them to men—or women either—for that matter—so long as they are mature and not likely to suffer injurious physical effects from them. Cigarettes should be pure, should be free from narcotics; and in that form they are nothing like as injurious even to adults as cigars, one of which probably will contain ten times the nicotine of a single cigarette. So it is not to be sold to men and women, then there is no good and valid reason why cigarettes should not be.

The existing law is simply ridiculous. Adults require no such protection. Here again is an instance of wise legislation, as applied to children, carried to absurd lengths.

ANNIDYING MR. BRYAN.

"Post cards addressed to Secretary of State Bryan at Washington and containing the printed words: 'or the benefit of the country, Resign' were held up by the Postmaster of Brooklyn under the postal rule excluding matter on postcards that seems to reflect on the character of the person addressed," says Leslie's Weekly. It is an innovation to regard a request for a resignation as a reflection on a man's character, though it may be regarded as a criticism of his fitness and capacity. It is said that the innovation was a general demand throughout the country for Mr. Bryan's resignation, but this is nothing new because numerous newspapers and magazines have made the same demand, and have gone through the mails without delay. Altogether the incident is so trifling that it is not worth noticing, and this, no doubt, will be Mr. Bryan's judgment.

Evidently the legislature appreciates the fact that the war was elected on a platform that called for reduction in state expenditures. The repeal of the two hundred thousand university appropriation is not to cripple the university in any way, but to retrench. The same is true of the La Crosse normal school appropriation and it is to be hoped both measures will pass.

A pretty face, a winsome smile, a clever personality and a gift tongue, with a smooth way of telling a story are unquestionably a valuable asset to a young girl for escaping punishment for wrong doing when the offense is merely obtaining money from the Pacific coast to Chicago on worthless checks.

England is having its own time with mobs of infuriated citizens who seek to revenge the loss of the Lusitania upon every German resident of the British Isles. Why not settle the matter by enforcing the old "press gang" law and deporting the rioters to the fighting line where they can meet the Germans face to face.

The attitude taken by the city officials as regards placing a flag on every corner in the residence districts is a wise one and should be endorsed by every taxpayer. Next thing to do is to light our down town business streets properly and not permit some of our smaller neighbors to excel us in this direction.

Unsigned communications received at the Gazette office, while they may contain valuable suggestions, are absolutely worthless. Several of such nature have been received recently. Contributors should sign their name and address if they desire them given consideration.

The next thing to do is to have the Rockford shop lifters case either adjourned again for thirty days, until the public forgets about them; or discontinue it entirely. Making a farce of justice and law enforcement has passed the joke stage.

Administration measures are being ordered up for passage by the legislature with striking regularity these days showing the members are standing behind the governor in his attempt to give the state a first class administration.

Now is the time to get rid of any household article you do not wish to store or have no use for.

JAMES KANNA FINED FOR TWO OFFENSES

Footville Resident Pleads Guilty to Assault and to Being Intoxicated.—Stewart McConnell Sentenced.

James Kanna, a resident of Footville, was given twenty-five dollars and costs of thirty days in jail, in default of the fine by Judge H. L. Maxwell in the municipal court this morning on the two charges of assault and battery and to being intoxicated. The complaint alleged that the assault was committed upon Hattie Gennung of Footville, and it was reported in court that Kanna, who is a bachelor, attempted to embrace Miss Gennung while she was in a state of intoxication. After much effort in remembering if he committed the assault offense, Kanna entered a plea of guilty and was given a choice of $25 and costs or thirty days under the commitment law.

The prisoner stated in court that he had a certified deposit check from the Footville bank for $75 which he could not find on his person. An inquiry to the bank sustained the story and the purse containing the slip was missing. If the purse was lost during the assault, a warning will prevent the deposit slip from being cashed.

GRIMM TO SETTLE BELOIT LAND CASE

Beloit's Garden Lane a Matter of Contended Ownership—Case to Be Tried Here Next Thursday.

Garden Lane, the wooded ground de luxe of Beloit's Lochvairs, the bewitching place of natural beauty on gleaming moonlight nights, this little tract of six acres, situated in the heart of the Line City is a matter of controversy between the school board and the city. The question as to whom the property rightfully belongs will be decided by Judge Grimm in court house here May 20, a week from today.

The school board contends that when the site of the school was sold to the district in 1886 Garden Lane was not determined upon as a public highway. The city avers that it was. Hence the controversy.

FACTORY PROJECT OF UNUSUAL IMPORTANCE

Big Machine Shop Owner Might Be Induced to Locate Branch Establishment in Janesville.

Last evening at the city hall a meeting of business men of the city discussed the offer of a prominent factory owner in an adjacent city to erect a branch establishment in Janesville for the manufacture of six-inch shells for one of the allied powers under a contract calling for fifty thousand at a cost of six dollars per shell. This manufacturer is at present engaged in manufacturing a large order of the same kind of shell for the same government, and his factory is not large enough to increase his output to meet the increased demand.

Janesville might be able to obtain the factory location if the sum of fifty thousand dollars was raised for stock in the new concern, protected by a mortgage on the building and the personal note of the manufacturer with the assurance that within two hundred and twenty-five days from the time the plant began operation the stockholders would receive back in dividends the total of their subscriptions and a generous bonus, estimated at something like a hundred per cent.

On the face of the affair it looked preposterous, but investigation showed the figures of the manufacturer were not amiss. A second meeting was held this morning in the office of the Commercial club and later adjourned until more information could be obtained relative to the matter at hand. It is a big proposition but would mean the establishment of a growing industry in the city which would be equipped to manufacture other products of the manufacturer when the present demand for shells was exhausted.

SOW RESCUES PIG FROM SACK

Tears Bag From California Ranchman's Back and Bites Him Twice in Leg.

Yreka, Cal.—George Flock, a prominent rancher near Yreka, was badly bitten by a sow with a litter of pigs. At the time of the accident he was passing through a yard with a six-day-old pig in a sack on his back. The pig gave a squeal and the old sow, on hearing it, jumped for the sack, tearing it off Flock's back. She then made for Flock, who ran for the fence, but before he could reach it he was bitten twice in the leg.

OFFERS REWARD FOR ARREST OF CULPRITS

William Kuhlow and a party of friends, including several ladies and children, had a narrow escape from injury last evening while passing under the railway bridge just above the dam. Mr. Kuhlow and party were going up the river in the Kuhlow launch which had been newly repaired, including a new roofing when small boys on the bridge dropped huge rocks down, which crashed through the roofing and endangered the passengers. Mr. Kuhlow offers a reward of five dollars for the arrest and conviction of the culprits. Fortunately no one was injured.

NO NEW EVIDENCE IN BURGART CASE

Girl Still Remains in Charge of Ex-Sheriff Whipple at County Farm.

To date none of the expected evidence which the state board of control agents and the police here appear anxious to obtain, has been forthcoming that would tend to explain the holding of Miss Agnes Burgart at the Rock county poor farm until she is re-sentenced and final action taken on her case before Judge Maxfield on Monday. There has been no discovery of the alleged or supposed confederate of the "schoolgirl" swindler and so far the facts of the case are as the information obtained by the police when the petite young lady was sentenced to state's prison for one year.

It was reported, however, that the state agents were busy themselves investigating the complete record of the girl's past life, with which to introduce in determining her new punishment on Monday. The court has appointed William Dougherty, attorney for the girl, who is also investigating the facts. While apparent efforts continue in this city to put over the penal punishment of Miss Burgart, inquiries and telegrams are still being received from banks and department stores in other cities, inquiring what action has been taken in the girl's case and all indicate the view that prosecution will follow the young lady after her punishment in this city.

Ex-Sheriff C. S. Whipple stated this morning: "I find that Miss Burgart is about the 'smoothest' person that I have met within my twenty years of experience with police work. Her personality is clever and her manner convincing."

As District Attorney Dunwiddie was in Beloit all day prosecuting a state case, nothing could be learned of what action is expected to be taken regarding the investigation and why Miss Burgart was not kept at the county jail after her commitment was issued.

WHY MEN FAIL.

Life is often pictured as a race. Would it not be even nearer the truth to go a step further and call it an obstacle race? A business friend of mine had told me of his plans to work out a new system of office management. When I asked him a few weeks later how the new plan was coming on he said, "Well, you know I haven't gotten at it yet. There's been one thing after another to hinder me. I'm waiting for a week when things are quiet." That was some months ago. The last time I asked about the plan he was still waiting for the quiet week. I imagine he will have to wait a long time, don't you?

When one waits for opportunities one usually waits a long time.

The only way to get an opportunity of this sort promptly is to make it instead of waiting for it.

Saving Time on Twenty-four Hours a Day. Putting aside time for any purpose is like saving money—there is always something to prevent. If we wait until the day comes when it is easy to do either of these things we shall still be waiting when we are called to move on to our next existence.

"Next week I shall have more money to spare," we are always promising ourselves in apology for a bank account not yet started. "This week I have this or that extra expense."

The now, here's hoping that more time, we are always assuring ourselves in excuse for not accomplishing something while we wait. "This week I have been this or that extra call on my time. I won't have that to distract me next week."

And then next week comes, and lo, we find that although we do not have the same extra demand upon our time or our pocketbook we have some other equally imperative and diverting.

Never the Same Thing But Always Something. It won't be the same thing two weeks in succession that makes saving time or money hard, but it will be something. If it isn't one thing, it's another. It's always something.

Life is an obstacle race. Those who win it by dint of overcoming one obstacle after another. The failures are those who are going to begin to run just as soon as they see a clear road before them.

And now, here's hoping that those who are already doing too much won't take this to heart and try to do more. Those who could do much more won't say, "Well, that doesn't mean me. I'm doing all I can."

Questions and Answers. Question. If a friend brings a girl a box of candy should she open it before him or set it aside until he has gone? Supposing a few other friends are expected later in the evening should she open it for them or say nothing about it?—An interested reader.

Answer. It seems to me the gracious thing to open any gift in the presence of the giver and thus give him the pleasure of seeing your pleasure. As for the other question, that is simply a personal matter. I should think the nicest thing would be to offer the candy to your guests. Perhaps your friend brought it with that in mind.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it proper for an engaged couple to stay home on Sunday afternoon? If so, is it necessary to dress as if you were going out?

(2) I have a rash on one side of my face. I have tried everything I have thought of, but it does no good. Can you tell me of something that would cure it?

(3) I always feel as if I am seeing moving. Do you know what causes it?

(4) My friend doesn't care to go to any shows or dances. What can we do to pass the time away?

(5) I think he ought to take me to shows to please me even though he doesn't care to go?

(1) Yes, it is proper to stay home on Sunday afternoons. The girl should be careful to look attractive. If she wears a house dress it should be fresh.

(2) I could not prescribe anything without knowing the nature of the rash.

(3) Perhaps a torpid liver. Consult a doctor about the rash and this sluggish condition.

(4) Talk, read and walk.

(5) He ought to take you once in a while.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it proper to eat beans with a teaspoon when out in company?

(2) Would it be all right for a girl to call on a fellow?

(1) Use a fork.

(2) No.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you be generous enough to treat the woman decently no matter what she says about you. If you stoop to answer her because she does, you put yourself on her level.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. E. L. LEONARD

"I guess you will want to throw the mortars overboard. They make you more trouble than they come to," said Dick when the doctor called to see how Nell was getting along the day after the shock caused by the baby's falling off the couch.

"But I don't want to make any more trouble, but I feel that you should know that Mrs. Ellison came yesterday with her mother was out of the house. Nell thought it was Mrs. Parsons and invited her into the bedroom. She sailed into Nell for putting her in a bad light before you, I suppose she referred to my telling you of her refusal to deliver my message the night I called you to see her when the baby fell off the couch. She accused Nell of trying to make occasions to see you and threatened her with the revenge of an injured jealous woman. Really, Nell is afraid of her."

The doctor sat with his hand shading his face during this recital and was silent after Dick had ceased speaking. When he raised his face it was white and jagged.

"Mortons," he said in a low voice. "I must tell you that affairs between Anna and me are at the worst. I have tried everything, and everything like has failed. If Mrs. Morton were the first patient she had been jealous of I would not be so hopeless, but there is always someone who is the subject of her wrath and whom I am accused of loving. I never knew of her visiting a patient before. I have stood all I can. I think I shall send her to a sanitarium and see if the relations cannot be improved between us we must separate. I hope you see I am in a manner driven to speak to you of this painful subject."

Dick stretched out his hand and gripped the doctor's. "Nell and I have often spoken of the fine, brave manner in which you carried your heavy burden. Not many men could have acquitted themselves as well. If sympathy can help any, you have the sympathy of the entire village."

"Thank you, sympathy does help," he replied quietly.

When the doctor called two days later, he said on leaving: "I start for Kansas City tonight to put Anna in a sanitarium for an indefinite stay."

Dick gripped his hand in silence. "I hope you will not allow yourself to sit at home and be lonely. Come over as often as you can; the latch string is always out."

"Thank you," The ghost of a smile passed over his grave face. To Dick alone did the doctor show his real feeling. To everyone else he was the same gay, cheery man, carrying sunshine into every home that he entered.

The whole town breathed a sigh of relief when it became known that Mrs. Ellison was taking the rest cure.

"It's the doctor that is taking the rest cure if the truth were admitted," said Nell.

"I wonder if we can get her maid," said Dick. "She would have to leave there. I'll see about it."

Gluten vs. Graham.
Q. Will you please tell me in your pure food column if graham flour is as much healthful as white flour? If not, please give directions for making bread of gluten flour. A. CONSTANT READER.

A. It is generally regarded that gluten flour is lower in carbohydrates than is graham flour, is of more advantage in the treatment of certain forms of diabetes. The advice of a competent physician should be followed in this connection.

The following recipe from Farwell & Rhines, manufacturers of Special Dietetic Food, gives excellent results: Make a sponge at night with one pint of milk or lukewarm water and one pint of Special Dietetic Food, to which add one-third of a cake of yeast dissolved in lukewarm water. Stir with a spoon, cover well and set in a warm place to rise.

CLAIM WAR TROUBLE WILL MEAN PROFITS

Minister to Denmark. Declares There is Immense Trade Opportunities in Europe for Americans.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Copenhagen, May 13.—American trade opportunities in Europe were pictured in a promising light by Dr. Maurice F. Egan, the United States Minister to Denmark, in speaking recently to a number of business men who have of late been in close contact with the United States legation and consulate-general here.

If the American man would divest himself of some preconceived ideas and carefully study actual conditions in foreign countries, he need neither fear financial panics nor the results of over-production in his own country, Dr. Egan believed.

He said while he could sympathize with the position in which many American business men had been placed by the conditions on the high seas resulting from the war, he felt that these very interests now so much impaired would flourish in the end. He had many times deplored the "provincial" point of view of many Americans in business as to foreign conditions. It had been his aim to induce them to study Europe except as a mere pleasure ground or as a place which might be utilized for the increase of their business without any previous study. At present, there were many business men in the United States who were terribly shocked to discover that the security of business had been shaken by the war. Their period of tranquility had been long, and that the chance of any interest outside of the United States affecting them seemed to be so impossible that many of them were amazed, angry and helpless in the presence of such unexpected disasters.

However strange it might seem, the present unhappy conditions had opened both the eyes of the American business men and the citizens of the neutral countries to the necessity of strengthening the commercial relations between the United States and foreign countries. The neutral countries had begun to look to the United States from a new and practical point of view. They had begun to understand that there were certain products which could be better obtained in the United States than in any other. At present, the abnormal rate of freight stood in the way and had to be considered. The risk otherwise too, were enormous. California fruits, for instance, and Oregon apples sell at a premium and disappear from the market in the shortest possible time. Cargoes of grapefruit, recently made a fashionable trademark by the kind of readily sold and a more amusing condition is that Denmark is at present obliged to get its spaghetti in New York.

The superiority of certain American canned goods, as for instance, apricots and tomatoes, is acknowledged and there is even a demand for American candles since the price of candles in Germany has risen. A great opportunity, too, exists for the sale of American plumbing appliances, he said, but firms handling these things in the United States must send competent men, speaking the language and understanding the necessities of American plumbing as applied to foreign buildings.

"Our consular reports, in which there appear many communications from the general public, indicate many other needs. Curiously enough, the interest in American products, the existence of which seems to have been overlooked by the business men, is growing and will continue to grow if properly pursued by our business men after the war."

SCISSORS FOR CUTTING BREAD TICKETS USED.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Vienna, May 13.—Scissors are odd in great demand in Vienna. It does not seem to have occurred to the authorities to perforate the coupon parts of the municipal bread tickets, so they have to be cut off with scissors. In consequence these, instead of being merely a professional or household necessity, have suddenly become indispensable for everybody.

As bread can only be had in restaurants and cafes in exchange for coupons, the waiters must be provided with scissors and it is estimated that at least ten thousand pairs have been bought for them alone. The bakers must have them also as disputes frequently arise as to whether it is the duty of the buyer or seller to detach the coupon, many private persons carry their own scissors round with them.

What a Trademark Means to You In Selection of Your Foods

Twenty-third of a series to appear on Food Page of this paper each Thursday

THE name of a certain American food product is rightly valued at more than one million dollars for every letter in it, and this value was created only by making the name of the product valuable to you as the buyer and to all other people who buy foods.

Before a trade mark can be worth a dollar to its owner it must render a genuine service to those who buy the goods for which it stands, and this value is created because it helps the buyer in his or her choice.

A trade mark which is of value to the manufacturer who owns it is the one which is generally recognized as identifying a line of goods which merit your patronage, and such a trade mark is necessarily of value to you as a buyer before it is worth a penny to the manufacturer who owns it.

Anything which helps you to distinguish between goods that are really worth what they cost and those which are not, between foods, for example, which are clean and pure and good to eat and those which are dirty, adulterated or low grade—anything which makes that discrimination easier and safer is valuable to you.

As a general rule—not always, of course—the mere fact that you recognize a certain trade mark as having pleasantly familiar associations, is ample evidence of merit in the line for which it stands. Few branded food products gain general public knowledge unless the goods which they represent have enough genuine merit to stand the test of public scrutiny over a period of several years.

As a rule, the manufacturer of adulterated foods chemically embalmed or colored does not invite any more attention to himself or his merchandise than he has to. It is the man with a product of that of her family. In the old days, nearly all groceries were sold in bulk from the open cracker and sugar barrel, coffee in bins and the uncovered butter tub, but today package goods are taking the place of bulk buying, and the trade mark is helping the housewife to select intelligently. Today most groceries are sold in sealed packages, protected from dust, dirt, germs and moisture, and those food products, still sold in bulk or loose, are kept carefully covered because the grocer of today realizes the importance of sanitation.

The advent of the Westfield Book of Pure Foods established the trade mark as a final, definite, positive index to merit and made it a simple matter to distinguish foods that are free from chemical taint, high in food value, sanitary and safe.

Read carefully the labels on cans, bottles and packages in buying your foods. Let the name and reputation of a maker as well as compliance with the Westfield Standard guide you in your selection. Patronize clean sanitary stores displaying the Westfield Pure Food Sign on their windows.

MOVIES ARE PROHIBITION AIDS IN WASHINGTON SAYS SEATTLE MAYOR.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Seattle, Wash., May 12.—The "movies" are revolutionizing the country. They are responsible for the "dry" wave sweeping the nation and ultimately will bring about prohibition and give women the ballot.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY

By
GEORGE BARR M'UTCHEON,
Author of "Grazzark,"
"Truxton King," Etc.

Copyright, 1915, by George Barr M'UTCHEON.

The bed moved. By means of great straining I got the heavy thing over against the mirror. One of the legs was hopelessly splintered in the drop from the raised platform.

"There," she said, standing off to survey our joint achievement; "we've stopped it up very nicely." She brushed the tips of her fingers daintily. "This afternoon you may fetch up a hammer and some nails and fasten the mirror permanently. Then you can move the bed back to its proper place. Goodness! What a narrow squeak!"

"Madame," said I, my hand on my heart, but not through gallantry, "that bed stays where it is. Not all the king's horses nor all the king's men can put it back again."

"Was it so heavy, Mr. Smart?" I swallowed very hard. A prophetic cry already had planted itself in my back. "Will you forgive me if I submit that you sleep quite a distance from home?" I remarked with justifiable irony. "Why the deuce don't you stay on the upper floors?"

"Because I am mortally afraid," she said, with a little shudder. "You're no idea how lonely, how spooky it is up there at the dead hour of night. I couldn't sleep. After the third night I had my things moved down here, where I could at least feel that there were strong men within—you might say arm's length of me. I'm—I'm shockingly timid."

"You're a little coward," she said, smiling at me. "Of course I don't mind, countess. I hastened to say, 'Only I thought it would be cozy up there with Rosemary and the two maids for company.' She leaned a little closer to me. 'We all sleep down here,' she said contentedly. 'We bring Rosemary's little mattress down every night and put it in the din bathub. It is a very good fit and makes quite a nice cradle for her. Helene and Blake sleep just across the hall, and we leave the doors wide open. So, you see, we're not one bit afraid.'"

"Don't," said I judicially. "And so my study is just beyond this mirror, eh? May I inquire how you happen to know that I have my study there?"

"Oh, I peeked in the other day," she said serenely.

"The deuce you did?"

"I was quite sure that you were out," she explained. "I opened Ludwig the Red an inch or two, that's all. You are quite cozy in there, aren't you? I envy you the grand old chaise longue."

We returned to the corridor. She closed the door softly, a mockery in view of the clatter I had made in shifting the bed and its impediments.

"Listen!" I whispered suddenly, grasping her arm. "Did you hear foot-steps in the—Shr."

Some one was walking over the stone floor in the lower hall, brisk strides that rang out quite clearly as they drew nearer.

"It is—it is Mr. Pless," she whispered in a panic. "I recognize his tread. As if I could ever forget it! Oh, how I hate him! He—"

"Don't stop here to tell me about it. I cut in sharply. "Make haste! Get up to your rooms and lock yourself in. I'll—I'll stop him."

Assuming a nonchalance I certainly did not feel, I descended the stairs. We met in the broad hallway below. Mr. Pless approached slowly, evidently having checked his speed on hearing my footstep on the stairs.

"Hello!" I said agreeably. "How did you get in?"

He surveyed me coolly. "I know the castle from top to bottom, Mr. Smart. To be perfectly frank with you, I tried the secret panel in your study, but found the opposite door blocked. You have no objection, I trust, to my looking over the castle? It is like home to me."

My plan was to detain him in conversation until she had time to secrete herself on the upper floor. Somehow I anticipated the banging of a door, and it came a moment later, not loud, but very convincing just the same. He glanced at me curiously.

"Then how did you get in?" I repeated, cringing perceptibly in response to the slam of the distant door.

"By the same means, I dare say, that you employ," said he.

For a moment I was confounded. Then my wits came to the rescue.

"I see. Through the dungeon. You do know the castle well, Mr. Pless."

"It is a cobwebby, unlovely passage," said he, brushing the dirt and cobwebs from his trousers. My own appearance was conspicuously immaculate, but I brushed in unison, just the same.

"I'd like to have your opinion as to the best way of restoring or repainting those mural paintings in the dome of the east hall," I said, detaining him. It was necessary for me to have a good excuse for rummaging about in the unused part of the castle. "It seems too bad to let those wonderful paintings go to ruin. They are hanging down in some places and are badly cracked in others. I've been worrying about them ever since I came into possession. For instance, that Muriel in the center. It must be preserved."

He gave me another queer look, and I congratulated myself on the success of my strategy. He took it all in. The mocking light died in his eyes, and he became intensely interested in my heaven sent project.

For fifteen or twenty minutes we discussed the dilapidated frescoes, and he gave me the soundest sort of advice, based on a knowledge and experience that surprised me more than a little. He was thoroughly up in matters of art.

I looked at my watch. Assuming a careless manner, I remarked:

"Come along." I started off in the direction of the lower regions. He followed. I maneuvered with such success that ultimately he took the lead. I hadn't the remotest idea how to get to the confounded dungeons!

At last there came a day of deliverance. The guests were departing, and I can truthfully say that I was speeding them.

Elsie Hazzard took me off to a remote corner, where a little later on Betty Billy and the two husbands found us.

"John, will you ever forgive me?" she said very soberly. "I swear to you I hadn't the faintest idea what it was."

"Please, please, Elsie," I broke in warmly; "don't abuse yourself in my presence. I fully understand everything at least, nearly everything. What I can't understand, for the life of me, is this: How did you happen to pick up two such consummate bounders as these fellows are?"

"Alas, John," said she, shaking her head, "a woman never knows much about a man until she has lived a week in the same house with him. Now you are a perfect angel."

"You've always said that," said I. "You did not have to live in the same house with me to find it out, did you?"

She ignored the question. "I shall never, never forgive myself for this awful week, John. We've talked it all over among ourselves. We are ashamed—oh, so terribly ashamed. If you can ever like us again after—"

"Like you?" I cried, taking her by the shoulders. "Why, Elsie Hazzard, I have never liked you and George half so-much as I like you now. You two and the Smiths stand out like Gibraltars in my esteem. I adore all of you. I shan't be happy again until I know that you four—and no more—are coming back to Schloss Rothoefen for an indefinite stay. Good Lord, how happy we shall be!"

I said it with a great deal of feeling. The tears rushed into her eyes.

"You're a dear, John," she sighed. "You'll come?"

"In a minute," said she with vehemence, a genuine American girl once more.

"Just as soon as these pesky workmen are out of the place I'll drop you a line," said I, immeasurably exalted. "But I draw the line at noblemen."

CHAPTER XII.

I Am Invited Out to Dinner.

MR. PLESS went away with the others at half past 11, and that was the end of his first visit to my domain. For fear that you, kind reader, may be disappointed, I make haste to assure you that he was to come again.

Of course there was more or less turmoil and I might say disaffection—attending his departure. He raised Cain with my servants because they did this and that when they shouldn't have done either; he (and the amiable baron) took me to task for having neglected to book compartments for them in the Orient express; he insisted upon having a luncheon put up in a tea basket and taken to the railway station by Britton, and he saw to it personally that three or four bottles of my best wine were neatly packed in with the rest. He said three or four, but Britton is firm in his belief that there was nearer a dozen, judging by the weight.

"Well, thank the Lord," said I, as the ferry put off with the party, leaving me alone on the little landing. The rotten timbers seemed to echo the sentiment. At the top of the steep all the Schmicks were saying it, too! In the butler's pantry it was also being said; a score of workmen were grunting it, and the windlass that drew me up the hill was screaming it in wild, discordant glees. I repeated it once more when Britton returned from town and assured me that they had not missed the train.

Conrad, grinning from ear to ear, was waiting for me outside my bedroom door late in the day. He satuted me with unusual cordiality.

"A note, mein herr," said he, and handed me a dainty little pearl gray envelope.

"I shan't be home for dinner, Conrad," said I, my eyes aglow. "Tell Hawkes, will you?"

The countess welcomed me with a radiant smile. We shook hands.

"Well, he has gone," said I, drawing a deep breath.

"Thank the Lord!" said she. And then I knew that the symphony was complete. We all had sung it.

It must not be supposed for an instant that I had been guilty of neglecting my lovely charge during that season of travail and despair. No, indeed! I had visited her every day as a matter of precaution. She required, a certain amount of watching.

I do not hesitate to say at this time that she seemed to be growing lovelier every day. In a hundred little ways she was changing, not only in appearance, but in manner.

Now, to be perfectly frank about it, I can't explain just what these little changes were—that is, not in so many words—but they were quite as pronounced as they were subtle. I may risk mentioning an improvement in her method of handling me. "Epe" was not taking quite so much for granted as she did at first. She was much more humble and considerate, I remarked. Instead of bullying me into things she now coaxed me; instead of making demands upon my patience and generosity she rather hesitated about putting me to the least trouble. She wasn't so arrogant nor so hard to manage. In a nutshell, I may say with some satisfaction, she was beginning to show a surprising amount of respect for me and my opinions.

Her devotion to Rosemary was wonderful to see. By the way, while I think of it, the child was quite adorable. She was learning to pronounce my name and getting nearer and nearer to it every day. At the time of which I now write she was calling me (with great enthusiasm) by the name of "Go-go," which reduced to aboriginal American means "Man-With-the-Strong-Arm-Who-Carries-Baby."

"It is very nice of you to ask me up to dine with you," said I.

"Isn't it about time I was doing something for you in return for all that you have done for me?" she inquired gayly. "We are having a particularly nice dinner this evening, and I thought you'd enjoy a change."

"A change?" said I, with a laugh. "As if I haven't been eating out of the same kettle for days!"

"I was not referring to the food," she said, and I was very properly squelched.

"Nevertheless, speaking of food," said I, "it may interest you to know that I expected to have rather a sumptuous repast of my own to celebrate the deliverance. A fine, plump pheasant, prepared a la Oscar, corn fritters like mother used to make, potatoes pleased."

"And a wonderful alligator pear salad," she interrupted, her eyes dancing.

"I stared. "How in the world did you guess?"

She laughed in pure delight, and I began to understand. By the Lord Harry, the amazing creature was inviting me to eat my own dinner in her sauté manger! "Well, may I be hanged! You do beat the Dutch!"

She was wearing a wonderful dinner gown of Irish lace, and she fairly sparkled with diamonds. As I looked at her standing there by the big oak table I couldn't help thinking that the count was not only a scoundrel but all kinds of a fool.

"It was necessary for me to bribe all of your servants, Mr. Smart," she said. "You did not offer the rascals money, I hope," I said in a horrified tone. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Dinner Stories

An Episcopal clergyman, rector of a fashionable church in one of Boston's most exclusive suburbs, could not be bothered with the innumerable telephone calls that fall to one in his profession, so he had his name left out of the telephone book. A prominent merchant of the same name, living in the same suburb, was continually annoyed by requests to officiate at funerals and baptisms. He went to the rector, told him his troubles in a kindly way, and asked the parson to leave his name put in the directory. But without success. The merchant then determined to complain to the telephone company. As he was writing the letter, one Saturday evening, the telephone rang and the timid voice of a young man asked if the Rev. Mr. Blank would marry him at once. "Happy thought came to the merchant: 'No, I'm too damn busy writing my sermon,' he replied.

"That's just like Tom," replied his wife. "He's always blurring out family secrets."

A well known French traveller, on his return from Fiji, happened to call on the Baron James Rothschild, and the latter, always on the lookout for information, pressed him for matters of interest concerning that country. After much hesitation, the visitor at length remarked that what he had struck him most was that there were no Jews and no pigs absolutely whatever on the island.

"Let us go there together, dear boy," quickly answered Sir James, "we shall make a fortune."

"This thing," said a young man, "this girl came in here looking for non-employment. I can't give her work but she shall not be insulted in my room. And when that she reached into his pocket, handed her a fifty cent piece, and tenderly escorted her to the door."

"Slavery," out in the hall, meanwhile had been making her usual rounds. What was that? A man? A woman? A very best of all a pocketbook. Why? A fine! She claiming the right of "Anderson's" "Slavery" helped herself to hat, coat and pocketbook. She mentioned the well, and disappeared in the direction of the attic, leaving Kit with an automobile to pay for at the door of the studio and clothes to wear for the journey home.

Here was a Dilemma

Here surely was a dilemma. "Dressed like a Spaniard, no money in her pocket; no hat to wear; no way of returning and asking money from her lover—what was the poor girl to do."

With her usual wit Kit took the situation in his stride. The taxi driver of course did not recognize her, the Spaniard that came out the widow in weeds when he had brought to the door, same time, since. This crisis was past. But what was to be done?

Kit, dodging passersby as much as she could, took for the park. Running along the grass, hiding behind trees and bushes whenever she saw a policeman or a strange man, she finally reached her home, rushed through the outer door, only to be met by the butler who tried to eject her.

Here, to his mind, was a strange intrusion. A Spaniard? A wildly disheveled Spaniard looking girl doing trying to break into the home of Mr. Herbert Standish. But! Nothing like that if he knew his tulle.

Thinking him determined not to let her in, Kit hid to reveal herself. "Jama," said Kit in a familiar voice that he instantly recognized. "Jama, it's I, Kit. Don't you recognize me?"

"Kit? Kit?" said the man, dropping his hold and standing at once on the middle of a soldier. "A thousand pardons, Miss Bradley," he stammered.

"What's all right, Kit?" said the man, "I'm sorry you're doing your duty. You see how it was. I'm so I went to his studio in this disguise. He said, 'What's that? You're not a Spaniard?'"

"Kisses the Money

But Kit had disappeared towards her room. Once inside, with the door locked, she took from her handkerchief, which was the only place left that she could use as a pocketbook, her purse having been permanently appropriated by "Slavery," the assured fifty-cent piece, kissing it again and again before she finally placed it in her jewel case.

That that experience had meant to her, Jerry had proven himself to be the man he felt in her innermost heart he was, and she treasured each little incident of the experience.

Lost in the reveries of her experience, Kit was sitting, musing, when her guardian, dressed in evening clothes, sent for her again before the drawing-room. Kit—she called her frequently—embraced him and waited for an explanation of the call.

"Kitten," he said, tenderly, "I fear you are lonesome tonight."

"How did you guess that?" she replied, feigning happiness.

"Oh, I know how it is. I know what separation means," he sighed, thinking of the loss of a separation in his own life that had left him a widower for a number of years. "Kitten," he exclaimed, "what do you say to going to the theatre?"

"Let's," exploded Kit—all enthusiasm in a moment. "Great! Where'll we go?" She was on fire in a moment. Jumped from her place by his side, seized an evening gown, and began reading the theatrical advertisements.

"Wonder," said her guardian, "if people really realize how many folks read such advertisements. How many hundreds of thousands of people in this big city are right now reading the advertisements in this paper and saying 'Where shall we go tonight?'"

"Oh, you silly goose," said Kit with a frown. "Don't talk advertising and platitudes to me, I'm on my way to the theatre."

BIDICULOUS STORIES CIRCULATED BY ALLIES AS TO CONDITIONS IN GERMANY

Count de Beaufort Gives Impressions Gained During a Trip Through the Kaiser's Dominions—Not the Least Sign of an Approaching Famine—People United in Sentiment Regarding the War—Believe Country Was Forced Into Conflict.

By COUNT MOURIK DE BEAUFORT.

(International News Service.)

The writer, who is well known in France several weeks ago, he has just spent some time in Germany and gives the following account of some of his impressions.

Berlin.—It does not take long after arriving in Germany to find out that the absurd stories circulating in England and France as to the real conditions in Germany are just about as ridiculous as the tales the German public is fed with as to the real state of affairs in the enemy's countries.

I have spent the last three months in various parts of Germany. At no time have I seen the very least sign of an approaching famine. I have eaten there just as well and as cheaply as in England.

The institution of the bread ticket was mainly designed to stop the wastage of bread, and it has fully answered its purpose.

Each person receives a ticket giving him the right to buy 250 grams of bread a day. I found it more than I needed.

The taste of the bread differed greatly in various places. In some parts, where it was supposed to contain 30 per cent of potato flour, it tasted as if it had 99 per cent; again, elsewhere, notably in Munich and all over Bavaria and in East Prussia, I found the bread very tasty.

I have been assured on every side that they will manage until the next harvest, which, from all signs, is going to be a very successful one. Then they will prepare for the next, and there will not be many square feet of land in Germany left uncultivated.

If the allies depend for success upon starving out Germany, I fear it will be a long, long way to victory. I do not think it can be done.

Then the Germans are supposed to be in difficulties owing to the shortage of men. Well, when I was in Munich on the Kaiser's birthday, January 27, 25,000 troops took part in the parade, and from what I have been able to learn from various consuls, it was the same in other cities.

Was Forced Into War.

Berlin today contains more soldiers than in peace time. They may not be as smart; they may not do the "paradeschritt" as scientifically as before, but the raw material is good. I have seen very few soldiers more than about thirty-five years of age. Moreover, there are a good many men between twenty and forty who, though registered, have not been called, and at the present rate of enlistment the supply will last a great many months.

It is unwise to trust the third supposed cause of Germany's downfall, viz., the discontent of the people when they know the real state of affairs. I have talked to hundreds of people, representing all classes, from the highest to the lowest, and I have come to the conclusion that there is today in Germany not one man in a thousand who is not absolutely convinced that Germany was forced into this war.

They say that other countries—notably England—were jealous of Germany's progress, and that she is fighting for her life and home. With the exception of the diplomats, the German has absolute confidence in his officials and superiors.

"Respect for authority," an American girl in Munich, who has married a Bavarian officer, said to me, "is making this country stronger than any other militarism. Ask any of them—they don't want to do without their service in the army. Every man will tell you he came out of the service a better man than he went in. Yes, the authorities think for the individual, but they think it for his best."

It will never occur to a German that he may be wrong, that his loyalty, his life and the lives of his dear ones are being sacrificed to a wrong cause. Nothing not all the exposures, defeats and hardships in the world, will make him change his mind. From the cradle, where his mother sang him to sleep with lullabies telling of great battles, and of the hero's death on the field of honor, the German becomes imbued with the spirit that places personal considerations second to those of the Kaiser and fatherland.

I had a long talk one day with Herr Sassenbach, secretary of the trade unionists' headquarters in Berlin, an organization which has sent over 800,000 men into the field. Herr Sassenbach is the Social Democratic alderman or city councillor of Greater Berlin. During the course of the conversation, at which Professor Francke, head of the bureau for social politics, was present, I suggested that it might after all be a blessing in disguise for the German laborer if Germany were to be beaten and thereby be relieved of the yoke of militarism.

I was venturing on dangerous ground. Sassenbach started to answer, but the professor cut him short, telling him under his breath, "Let me answer him!"

Are Not Going to Lose.

Quite excited and evidently annoyed, he exclaimed: "Sir, if you want to make yourself thoroughly unpopular here and your mission to be an entire failure; if you want to make people shut up like a clam, then ask such questions or make such suggestions! In the first place, we are not going to lose this war, but if we did it would go ill with the German laborer, because he would be taxed much heavier than he is now to pay for the war indemnity; and, secondly, our jealous enemies would place such restrictions on our trade that it would be impossible for us to compete."

I asked Sassenbach point blank, why, in that case, his party had been opposing the increase of armaments. His answer was typical. "We all realize now," he said, "that we were mistaken. The workmen do not as yet rule the world—this war is proving that. We still stand in friendly relationship to the workmen of Great Britain and France. Only a few days ago I received a communication from Mr. —, and we frequently hear from the French headquarters. All the same, what would have become of us if we had not had our army, if we had not been prepared as we are?"

I thought that in such case Germany would perhaps have shown a different and more conciliatory attitude towards various proposals made by other countries, and consequently that the war might have been avoided. But he would have none of it.

"No, no," he emphatically denied. "Germany's spirit was conciliatory to the end. Read the last telegram our Kaiser sent to the czar. We were forced to fight. England has been wanting to get at us for a long time. If Russia had not been sure of France and England, do you think she could have found one idiot in St. Petersburg who would have started this war with us?"

"Russia knew our strength and her own as well. No; this war has been a willful attack on a peace-loving, industrious nation. I know the spirit and feelings of my men. I am one of them, and that is why we have risen to a man, and we will stand together, low by high and high by low, and see this through."

Sassenbach was, not so many years ago, a humble workman, while today he occupies a very responsible position. He speaks French and English—which he has taught himself—fluently, and, as Professor Francke and the mayor of Berlin told me, he enjoys the confidence of many important men, though they be of entirely opposite political faith. So, when a man of his type feels and speaks in that manner, prompted, I am sure, by deep-rooted, honest convictions, you may imagine how strong the feelings must be among the lesser elements.

Foreigners Closely Watched.

There is no doubt many neutrals in Germany have become almost hypnotized by the effect produced by the elaborate efficiency of the German system. Even foreign consuls have caught the infection. This, for example, is what a certain consul-general said to me:

"Germany cannot be destroyed, because it is the most perfectly managed country in the world."

Early in my peregrination my investigation of German conditions was bringing results quite different from those I expected. Every foreigner has to go through a certain period of probation, and till he has passed that he lives under a cloud of suspicion. The valet of your floor knows, of course, every scrap of paper, book, map, note, you have in your possession. So do the various secret agents, detectives, or whatever they may be called, who rummage through your luggage and open your letters, both coming and going.

Police sergeants who want to "inspect your passports" are always very early birds. Their visits are unannounced and unexpected, and if you have the careless habit of sleeping with your door locked (and have no dog) you may see them sometimes suddenly at the foot end of your bed, when you wake up. I am speaking from personal experience.

"They catch many that way," the manager of the hotel told me, when I complained about this almost nocturnal visit, as unwelcome as it was unexpected.

BLOODHOUND LIKED "COPS"

Was Police Dog, but Now Acts in "Uncle Tom"—Scared the Bluecoats.

Sandusky.—A bloodhound with an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company here over Sunday struck terror to the hearts of several policemen by rushing toward them as if it intended to eat them up, only to indicate the fondest affection once it got within range.

In one instance the dog was face to face with death and the end of a revolver when it began licking the bluecoat's hand.

It developed later in the day that the hound was at one time the official "police dog" at Columbus, Ohio, and its fondness for policemen impels it to rush forward and caress whenever it sees a blue uniform and brass buttons.

Publishing summons.....10.00
Attaching bank account.....9.50

SUCCESS LETTERS

It is Easier to Read the Want Ads Than it is to Tramp Over the City Looking for a House

Here's a letter from a lady who is now a Gazette reader:
May 14, 1915.

Dear Sir:
Early this spring I decided to move, so I started out one morning to find a house. I looked all that day and did not find anything, so I went out the next day but did not find anything then either. I went out every day for about two weeks.

At last I got sick and tired of looking and not finding anything, so one night I bought a Gazette. While looking it over I noticed the column of advertisements, "houses for rent." There were five houses in the list so I went to see them. I rented the second one, thanks to the want columns.

"It requires no peculiarly acute deductions to ascertain whether or not a man is married," said Sackville McKnutt. AT THE APOLLO.

"Ireland a Nation."
Through the management of the Apollo Theatre the A. O. H. and the Ladies' Auxiliary have secured the much talked of and wonderful motion picture "Ireland a Nation," which will be presented at the Apollo on Tuesday afternoon and evening with special Irish music.

This is a picture that every man or woman of Irish descent should witness. The scenes are beautiful of course, as they were taken in Ireland, and the play acted by an entire Irish cast. The story is a thrilling one and more romantic than wild fiction.

This photograph has been shown with great success in the larger cities.

AT THE LYRIC.

The Ina Lehr Stock Company, opens their engagement at the Lyric Theatre tonight with Lena Rivers. AT MYERS THEATRE.

It is interesting to note the unanimity with which the leading critics and musicians of the east have accorded to the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra its position as one of the two or three greatest orchestras in the country. Charles H. Meltzer, considered by many the most able critic in New York, wrote as follows: "It is safe to say that with the exception of the great Bostonian organization founded by Col. Higginson, no body of musicians in this country which deserves title to symphony, has excelled the Minneapolis society. But for local pride I might be tempted to add—none has equalled it." The Musical Courier said editorially: "Let it be said at once that the visit of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra has fulfilled the Musical Courier's prophecy, for we have today in New York no playing body and no leader on a par with the Northwestern organization and its conductor. During the past five years no orchestra in the country has traveled more extensively and the success of the orchestra and its remarkable conductor, Emil Oberholzer, has been little less than sensational." This famous orchestra will appear at the Myers theatre Sunday, May 16, matinee only. A big advance sale of seats took place today. Seat sale opened this morning.
